INGROWING TOE NAILS.—This most painful of the diseases of nails is caused by the improper manner of cutting the nail (generally of the great toe), and then wearing a short, badly made shoe. The nail, beginning to grow too long and rather wide at the corners, is trimmed around the corner, which gives temporary relief. But it then begins to grow wider in the side where it was cut off, and as the shoe presses the flesh against the corner the nail cuts more and more into the flesh, which becomes exceedingly tender and irritable. If this state continues long, the toe becomes more and more painful and ulcerated, and proud flesh sprouts up from the sorest points. Walking greatly increases the suffering till positive rest becomes indispensable. To treat ingrowing toenails, proceed as follows: Begin the effort at cure by simple application to the tender part of a small quantity of chloride of iron. It is found in the drug stores in a liquid form, though sometimes in powder. There is immediately a moderate sensation of pain or burning. In a few minutes the tender surface is felt to be dried up, tanned or mummified, and it ceases to be painful. The patient who could not before put his foot to the floor now finds that he can walk without pain. By permitting the hardened, wood-like flesh to remain two or three weeks, it can easily be removed by soaking the foot in warm water. If thereafter the nails be no more cut around the corners or sides, but always cut in across the front end, they in future grow forward, and by wearing shoes of a reasonably good size and shape, all future trouble will be avoided.
